

WASHINGTON -- New England dairy farmers came under fire today in the House of Re

"We won this fight in the Appropriations Committee last week; today on the House floor; and I v

Congressmen David Obey and Thomas Petri, both of Wisconsin, offered House floor an

Congressman John Olver, also a member of the Appropriations Committee, spoke against the

"This is about small family farms. They're struggling all over the country. Factory

"We do not want the nation to be forced to rely solely on a supply of milk from a relatively smal

The Northeast Dairy Compact, originally proposed by Olver, is an interstate commission

"The Dairy Compact should be allowed to do its job," Olver added.

###